

Annuities vs. mutual funds

Understanding the difference

Mutual funds and annuities offered through a retirement savings plan are considered long-term investment products. It's important to understand the difference so you can select the one that is best for you.

What is a mutual fund?

A mutual fund is a pool of securities, such as stocks and bonds, managed by an investment company. Investors share in the gains or losses of the fund, and returns are not guaranteed.

What is an annuity?

An annuity is a contract between an individual and an insurance company. Annuities sometimes have higher expenses than mutual funds because the insurance company absorbs some of the investment risk, such as guaranteeing to preserve the value of your principal or providing future income in retirement.

For employees who currently have annuities with Equitable Financial

If you participated in the 403(b) and/or Alternative Retirement Plan (ARP) prior to November 1, 2020, you may still have retirement assets in Equitable Financial annuities. To better understand the differences between annuities and the new mutual fund product now in your retirement plans, we have developed a comparison chart for each of the plans.

Momentum PlusSM is a group-deferred annuity contract for employers who sponsor qualified retirement plans. The Momentum PlusSM employer-sponsored retirement program includes 401(a) and 401(k) plans, which are described in this prospectus. The Momentum PlusSM program consists of a defined contribution IRS preapproved plan and trust (Plan and Trust), which we sponsor, and a pooled trust (Pooled Trust) for employers who prefer to use their own qualified plan and trust. This funding vehicle is designed to help you accumulate assets through investments in underlying portfolios and the guaranteed interest option during the accumulation phase. The contract may be appropriate if you have a long-term investment horizon. It is not intended for people who may need to access invested funds within a short-term time frame or frequently, or who intend to engage in frequent transfers of the underlying portfolios.

Momentum PlusSM is sold via prospectus, which contains more complete information, including investment objectives, risks, charges, and expenses. Clients should read the prospectus carefully before investing or sending any money.

Mutual funds are sold by prospectus only. Be sure to review your prospectus that contains complete information on charges, risks, expenses and investment objectives before sending any additional funds.
